DOES RAP MUSIC HAVE A NEGATIVE IMPACT ON YOUTH?

Weekly Passage

Some people believe that rap music has had considerable influence on children and teenagers, most of which has been negative. They claim that the lyrics are often violent and especially insulting to women. Thus, they say, rap has contributed to aggression among young people and to behavior that disrespects women.

But is that a valid claim? Supporters of rap music say the songs demonstrate a different face of American culture than the one we usually see on television or in newspapers. They think it's important for rappers' voices to be heard. Other people argue that some individuals who listen to rap were probably violent before ever hearing this type of music. Thus we can't blame rap for their violent actions. Still others say that rap is a form of creative expression – this generation's poetry. They point to rap artists who create positive images for today's youth.

However, some parents are worried about the messages conveyed by rap music and asked the music industry to label CDs with a warning. Many rap music fans consider this a form of artistic censorship that has no place in a free society.

Do you think that listening to rap leads to aggression? Should we have rules to prevent rap artists from talking about violence, especially violence against women? What would be sufficient evidence, in your view, to support the claim that rap has a negative impact on youth?

Problem of the Week

Does rap music contribute to violence? A considerable number of rap songs talk about hurting and killing people, especially women. However, this is not sufficient to show that rap itself is dangerous. Researchers have tried to demonstrate connections between rap music and aggressive behavior in many different studies. They try to establish valid conclusions by keeping many possibilities in mind. For example, even if rap listeners exhibit violent behavior, the music itself may not be the cause.

One study compared two groups: students who watched rap music videos for 14 or more hours each week, and students who rarely or never watched them. The students who watched the videos for at least 14 hours each week showed the following characteristics.

- ▶ They were three times more likely to hit a teacher
- ▶ They were over 2.5 times more likely to get arrested.

Option 1: Based on the information above, is the following conclusion valid or invalid?

Students who watched 14 or more hours of rap music videos each week were more likely to hit a teacher than to get arrested.

- A) The conclusion is valid.
- B) The conclusion is invalid.

Option 2: Manny watches 7 hours of rap music videos each week. Based on the information above, is the following conclusion valid or invalid?

Manny is 1.5 times more likely to hit a teacher than students who rarely or never watch rap music videos.

- A) The conclusion is valid.
- B) The conclusion is invalid.

Math Discussion Question: What if researchers could demonstrate a valid cause-and-effect relationship between rap music and violent behavior? For example, what if researchers could show that non-violent teens became violent after listening to rap? Would this be sufficient reason for us to ban certain songs or artists? The Constitution gives considerable protection to free speech. However, not all speech is protected. Words that endanger others (such as, in one famous example, yelling “Fire!” in a crowded theater) can be banned. What can you contribute to this debate? Where should we draw the line between free speech and public safety?

Debating the Issue

1. Get ready...

Pick one of these positions (or create your own).

A Rap songs that promote violence, especially violence against women, should not be sold to minors because they set a bad example.

B Freedom of speech is an important American right, so rap lyrics should never be censored, no matter what they say.

C Rap artists should take some responsibility for setting a good example for young people, and promoting violence does not set a good example, but it is ultimately their choice to write about whatever they want.

D Rap music is an important form of creative expression, and kids are smart enough to be critical of bad messages and make responsible decisions about how to behave toward each other.

Unit 1.05

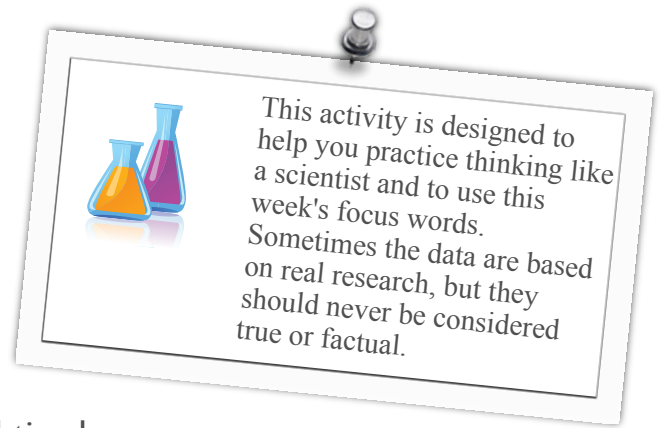

Does rap music have a negative impact on youth?

Science Activity

Professor Kahn and the principal, Miss Jackson, are talking about a group of eighth-grade boys. Their fighting has become a considerable problem.

Is this true? Professor Kahn decides to find out.

Question:

Do students who listen to rap get in more fights?

Hypothesis:

Students who listen to rap get in more fights than students who don’t listen to rap.

Materials:

- ▶ 100 students

Procedure:

1. Ask students what kind of music they listen to.
2. For one year, record how many fights these students get involved in.
3. Calculate the average number of fights for rap listeners and non-rap listeners.

Data:Analysis:

“I knew it,” says Principal Jackson. “Rap makes kids violent.”

Professor Kahn disagrees. “That is not a valid conclusion,” she says. “Kids who listen to rap music may get in more fights, but that’s not sufficient evidence to demonstrate that rap music causes fighting. It may not contribute to fighting at all.”

“What do you mean?” Miss Jackson asks.

“Just because two things are correlated, or happen together, doesn’t mean that one thing causes the other,” says Professor Kahn. “For example, people that live in New Orleans tend to eat gumbo. They also tend to like the New Orleans Saints football team. If we did a study, I bet we’d find that gumbo eaters are more likely to like the Saints than non-gumbo eaters. But eating gumbo doesn’t cause people to like the Saints.”

Principal Jackson is quiet. Then she says, “I see what you mean. We need to do more research on rap and violence before we draw conclusions.”

Conclusion:

Is the hypothesis supported or not by the data?

What evidence supports your conclusion?

How would you make this a better experiment?
